the penultimate volume in this series explores the effect that industrialisation new technology the growth of cities and the revolutions in transport and in communication had on the family between 1789 and 1913

the impact of institutions and organisations on european family law looks at the impact that institutions and organisations have had and continue to have on european family law in many ways the chapters in this volume provide the easiest explanation for the existence of a european family law while there is no european body that could actually legislate definitively on family law even the european union has no such mandate there are still some obvious institutions that have a very direct impact on european family law these can be divided into two groups namely those that have a direct impact such as the european court of human rights and the european union and those that have an indirect impact such as the commission on european family law cefl the council of europe and the international commission on civil status iccl ciecl as well as the private international law instruments of the hague conference hcch and the eu together with religion all of these institutions are contributing to the creation of a european family law this book and the others in the set will serve as an invaluable resource for anyone interested in family law it will be of particular use to students and scholars of comparative and international family law as well as family law practitioners the family forms of historic europe have been fascinating in their variety their importance for the historical development of our continent would be difficult to exaggerate for our relationship with the peoples of the other continents of the world as well this book is an attempt to recover the different familial systems and compare them with one another the studies range from russia poland hungary and austria to scandinavia flanders and britain all the influences which have affected the character and composition of european households are taken into account the analysis covers their function as productive work groups in the procreation and bringing up of children and in the support of the elderly and their relationship with the wider society and its norms along with its political organization central and local claims that inheritance customs and inheritance practice and the occupation of the household head exerted a powerful influence on the size and composition of households are subjected to rigorous and systematic investigation around 300 a d european patterns of marriage and kinship were turned on their head what had previously been the norm marriage to close kin became the new taboo the same applied to adoption the obligation of a man to marry his brother's widow and a number of other central practices with these changes christian europe broke radically from its own past and established practices which diverged markedly from those of the middle east north africa and asia in this highly original and far reaching work jack goody argues that from the fourth century there developed in the northern mediterranean a distinctive but not undifferentiated kinship system whose growth can be attributed to the role of the church in acquiring property formerly held by domestic groups he suggests that the early church faced with the need to provide for people who had left their kin to devote themselves to the life of the church regulated the rules of marriage so that wealth could be channelled away from the family and into the church thus the church became an interitor acquiring vast tracts of property through the alienation of familial rights at the same time the structure of domestic life was changed dramatically the church placing more emphasis on individual wishes on conjugality and on spiritual rather than natural kinship tracing the consequences of this change through to the present day jack goody challenges some fundamental assumptions about the making of western society and provides an alternative focus for future study of the european family kinship structures and marriage patterns the questions he raises will provoke much interest and discussion amongst anthropologists sociologists and historians since 1945 europe has experienced many periods of turmoil and conflict and as many moments of peace and integration from the devastation felt in the aftermath of world war ii to the recovery in the 1950s and 1960s to the new challenges in the 1970s and 1980s when neoliberal policies led to fundamental social and economic changes marked by the effects of the oil shock and widespread unemployment and then 1989 and after when the existing world order experienced new convulsions in this brilliant and comprehensive work the author one of the best known social historians of europe discusses a wide range of subjects not shying away from controversial topics family structure work consumption values migration inequality elites civil society social movements media welfare state education and urban policies he focuses on the fundamental changes european societies underwent in the second half of the twentieth century but also explores what divides europeans what unites them and what sets them apart from the rest of the world this major historical work will be an important and highly sought after addition for library collections as well as an important volume for course adoptions this opening volume of a three part history of the family in europe examines the material conditions of family life housing diet and domestic organisation and the economic and social factors that influenced its development

this volume results from a conference on the 1965 hajnal hypothesis at stanford university in 1999 scholars from all over the world reviewed the contribution hajnal s hypothesis made to our knowledge of historical demography first the hypothesis is placed in its historiographic context geography comes next hajnal distinguished western europe from the rest of the world because marriage there was late and non universal by contrast in eastern europe but even more so in asia young and universal marriage dominated the second part of this book explores these geographic divisions covering western eastern and southern europe japan india and china the third part of the volume introduces new issues and thus revises and even extends hajnal s hypothesis into patriarchy the role of children women s labor servants and illegitimacy this volume is the first in the series life at the extremes the demography of europe and china edited by chuang ying chang academia sinica taiwan theo engelen radboud university nijmegen the netherlands and arthur p wolf stanford university u s a book jacket
